The business collaboration between the Ruhr steel magnate Friedrich Flick and former Reichsbank president Hjalmar Schacht, reportedly ended a number of months ago in a dispute arising out of the sale of ammunition to Egypt. According to German steel circles, Schacht, after various visits to the Near East, had let it be known that he was one of the best channels for German-Arab trade, specifically in armaments and ammunition. Schacht was able to conclude a number of contracts during 1953; however, Flick related late in 1953 that he was asked to discover that Schacht had arranged for the sale of cartridges to the Egyptians, which on arrival had been found to be defective. This reportedly led to strong protests on the part of the Egyptian Government and caused a considerable diminution in Schacht's reputation for commercial astuteness.
